

ANGELA McMONAGLE, M.B.A., ICD

Angela's career has included roles in investor relations, corporate communications, business planning, finance, marketing and product management in blue chip Canadian companies across several industries. Working with senior leaders across these organizations Angela has helped many leaders build and preserve the company's profile and reputation with external and internal constituencies and drive improved company performance. She has helped individuals and organizations build highly effective cross-functional teams and processes to support these activities.

COACHING SUCCESS STORIES

People Development – Angela helped new CFOs in the technology and retail sectors understand the expectations and dynamics of the investment community (analysts, investors and business media) and provided counsel on strategy, actions and activities to ensure successful interactions that preserved and enhanced the company's professional reputation.

Team Development – Angela built and led highly effective virtual teams and processes to support strategic company communications and stakeholder relations at each company. Using a collaborative approach, she built cross-functional teams and introduced discipline and processes to ensure comprehensive and timely communications and stakeholder support.

Skills Development – Angela worked with investor relations, finance and business unit teams in each company to enhance their effectiveness in incorporating the methods, metrics and perspectives used by the investment community and other external stakeholders.
